An Introduction to Browser Based Applications and HTML

During this session we will cover the following topics:

- An Introduction To Browser Based Applications
- An Introduction to HTML
- Embedding Images in Web Pages
- Adding Links and Anchors
- Using Cascading Style Sheets
- Arranging Content

The session will include a hands-on lab. The facility will provide a wireless connection. Attendees will be required to bring a lap top computer with the following requirements:

- An internet browser preferably Internet Explorer or Firefox.
- Wi Fi capability
- Notepad will be used to create and modify HTML files

The session will begin with a PowerPoint presentation followed by a hands-on lab. The session content will be based on the book, HTML FOR THE BUSINESS DEVELOPER, authored by Laura A. Ubelhor and Kevin Forsythe. Code examples will be provided. Attendees will have the option to purchase the book at a discounted rate. Purchase of the book will not be a requirement for the session, but will provide an option for attendees to use the material during and after the hands on lab. The PowerPoint presentation and code examples will be shared with attendees. The session is intended for business developers. If you are new to HTML or new to web development the session will provide skills and experience to begin the journey as a web application developer. Whether you are new to web development or have experience the hands on lab will provide an opportunity to learn and advance your HTML skills.
